【Forum against Money Laundering Bank Accounts Held in Taiwan Miaoli District Prosecutors Office】

Thousands of people are convicted as money laundering aiders due to recklessly providing their bank account to criminal organizations each year. Given that criminal organizations in Taiwan attract people to provide bank accounts through internet advertisements about offering loans, jobs and etc., Taiwan Miaoli District Prosecutors Office held a forum on Sep.28th with public press and social media operators to form better strategies against the misleading information on the internet.

Chief Prosecutor Chen provided his in-depth comments and encouraged the Office to adapt an active approach cooperating with police, media operators, convenient stores and banks. Most citizens will suffer from bad money laundering controls thus it's important to keep up with the crime prevention policies. The forum was full of lively discussion and set a good example for communication between public service and media operators.
